venient reach of the daily, will find the Warnly Pass the best substitute, and a complete news and literary journal for the family. Subscription price $1 a year. The Sheriffulty.

The disturbances in the Democratic party of Hamilton County center upon the question of the candidate for the Sheriffalty. Mr. Myers better known under the soubriquet of "Little Red," appears to have have initiated the policy of the "Little Giant." and fixed his purty at a dead-look-placing before it the alternative: Little Red or nobody. Whether the adjournment from the Charleston of the Queen City to the Baltimore of Mount Pleasant will prove as propitious to Myers as the model Democratic begirs did to Douglas-giving bim the nomination at the expense of a divided party, a rival candidate, and prospects of election the reverse of brilliant, remains to be seen.

We get, in the national and local condition of the Democratic party, a good exemplification of the manner in which the convention system, devised to make parties perpetual, irrespective of principles, eventually loads them until they break down. The doings of such caucuses as we have had this season will have little effect upon the people to influence their suffrages. A nomination will fail to be an indication of the strength of the candidate; and while the party institution remains, the party discipline will cease to have any power to terrify or to persuade.

We know now that the ritual which candidates before Democratic Conventions are required to say over-"I am a Democrat; sucked Democracy with my mother's milk; I never bolted the Democratic ticket, and l promise to support the ticket nominated today whether I am on it or not"-means nothing, and that nobody considers himself bound by it a particle farther than is convenient. It would be better if there were no promise, but the promise being made, it is well that it is not holden greatly obligatory. The rubric has remained after the spirit has passed away; it is the way of rabrics all over the world.

It is probable that should Mr. Myers be nominated, he would discover that, heavy as has been the toil to get thus far, troubles are just begun. The time when a nomination by the Democratic party and an election were equivalents has blown over. Candidates who have made themselves candidates merely by party means-finesseing at primary meetings and packing delegations, will be distrusted by large numbers of those who vote; and the quiet anarchy of the ballotboxes will be more formidable to professional office-seekers than the more demonstrative

The Second District. Alexander Long is the candidate of the Democracy for Congress in the Second District of Hamilton County. Mr. Long is, or was, the business partner in the legal profession of Alexander Ferguson, Esq., who was a candidate for nomination in the First District-the copartnership, as it has been currently reported, contemplating originally a distribution of the proceeds of the political as well as the professional enterprise.

Mr. Long was nominated with much unanimity-the effect, perhaps, of a feeling on the part of these who would otherwise hav been his competitors, that the chances of election as against Mr. Gurley were not characterized by an extraordinary degree of brilliancy. Mr. Gurley has, in fact, contrived, and with a considerable appearance of justice, to impress the people of his district with the belief that he has been a faithful and industrious representative of their interests and their will; and it will require a pretty good man, as matters are now situated, to prevent him from being again elected. Mr. Long possesses no extraordinary qualifications, either as a candidate or as a public servant. He has no elements of personal popularity to carry him beyond the circle of the faction to which he belongs; and as a Representative in the State Legislature, he was chiefly distinguished by his arrogance to his colleagues, his fondness for listening to his own oratory, and his propensity for party legislation.

Mr. Long's rivals in the Second District probably hope and expect that he will finish himself off this time, and be out of the way for the next. Not so looks upon it Mr. Long. Beaten, he will be an excellent subject for Executive elemency; or, in case the Democracy should fail in the Presidential election -if it is possible to contemplate such a catastrophe-will have his spavins and windgalls to show to his party as a title to be entered for the race at the next trial.

Whisky inspection. The Council filibustered last night to prevent the acceptance of the official bonds of the Whisky Inspectors. Those of the Oil and Molasses Inspectors, appointed by the came Board, were accepted without question, but when it came to the Inspectors of Whisky, gentlemen suddenly had doubts about the constitutionality of the Perguson Bill. They had no doubts about oil and molasses, but seriously fear that it is not constitutional enough for whisky. Such is the wisdom of grave City Fathers.

One gentleman said that the Chamber of Commerce had appointed a committee on the matter, and the Conneil had better wait to see what they thought about it. Thus, it seems, our City Council is subordinate to the Chamber of Commerce. Perhaps if the whisky-dealers stir up this matter pretty sharp, an odor will be developed that will be more pungent than agreeable

The First District. Mr. Pendleton has reason to feel gratified that his services have been so well appreciated by his party as to overrule the party custom of rotation at the end of the second term, and place him again in nomination. The compliment is due him for the manner in which be has discharged his duties as a Representative.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

SPEECH OF HON. JOHN C. BRECKINBIDGE, AT LEXINGTON, SEPTEMBER 5.

The telegraphic report states that a great crowd assembled to hear Mr. Breckinridge. He began at twenty minutes after eleven. We omit the opening, which was chiefly an expression of gratitude to his friends, and an explanation of the manner in which he came to be brought cut as a candidate, against his wishes. Then he met the statement, that he was not regularly nominated, by showing that Douglas was never nominated according to the rules of the Democratic organization.

Then he proceeded to deay the charges Then he proceeded to deny the charges made against him. He denied that he signed a petition for the pardon of John Brown, and that he was favorable to the election of General Taylor. He participated in a meeting to bring forward General Taylor, supposing his continents were all right, but on sing his sentiments were all right, but on return from Mexico he found Taylor running in opposition to the Demo-cratic ticket, when he at once took the stump for the Democratic nomination. As for lesing his vote, he paired off with a party, of six or eight Whigs. If others had aone as well, they would have elected Cass and SQUATTER SOVEREIGNTY IN 1830. He then denied that in 1880 He than denied that in 1880 and 1881 and other in laciana and other intes, he had committed himself to the doctrine of squatter sover-cignty, and produced the letter of General Miles, who heard the speech at Tippecanoe, and some other correspondence, to show that his position then was the same as now. Then he proceeded to

Then be proceeded to DOUGLAS'S VIOLATION OF THE NEBRASKA BAR-

GAIN. Now, gentlemen, having vindicated my-self and the Constitutional Democracy from the charge of having abandoned the position they took in 1854 and 1856, I turn upon my accuser, and undertake to show that he him-self abandoned the agreement he solemuly made at the time the Kansas-Nebraska Bill made at the time the Kansas-Nebraska Bill passed the Congress of the United States igreat applause], and I do not make myself a witness against him to do it; I will prove it by himself. [Voices—"Good; good," and ap-

On the second day of July, 1856, in de-bate upon a bill to authorize the people of Kansas to form a constitution preparatory to admission into the Union as a State, when the question arose as to what was the true meaning of the Kansas-Nebraska Bill, and the limitation of the power of the Territo-rial Government, Mr. Trumbull offered the following amendment as an additional sec-tion to the bill:

"And be it further enacted, that the provision in the act to organize the Territories of Nebraska and Kansaa, which declares it to be the true intent and meaning of said act, not to legislate slavery into any Terri-tory or State, nor to exclude it therefrom, but to leave the people thereof perfectly free to form and regulate their domestic institu-tions in their own way, subject only to the Constitution of the United States, was inconstitution of the United States, was in-tended to and does confer upon, or leave to the people of the Territory of Kansas, full power, at any time, through its Territorial Legislature, to exclude slavery from said Territory, or to organize and regulate it therein."

That was Mr. Trumbull's amendment, against which an overwhelming majority of the Senate voted, including General Cass the Senate voted, including General Cass and Senator Douglas.

Let me, however, do Mr. Douglas the justice to say that he voted against the amendment, not because he did not believe the Territorial Legislature had the power to exclude slavery from the Territory, but bedecide the question legislatively, which they had agreed to leave to the Court.

General Cass says—[Mr. Breckinridge here quoted from General Cass to show that the South and North differed about the powers that might be given a Territorial Legislature, and that the Kansas Bill left that to be adjude ted by the Court by which alone the constitutional question could be settled finally.]

Mr. Breckinridge continued:
Mr. Douglas, in the same debate, used the following language in speaking of the attempt of his colleague to coerce an opinion out of him upon the question whether the Territorial Legislature had the power to exclude slave property before they became a State, and said—(Mr. B. read from Douglas's speech, an extract concluding with the assertion, "we agreed to refer it to the judiciary; we agreed to abide by their decision.") clary; we agreed to abide by their decision." He then read from the Dred Scott decision and from the report of the Compromise Committee of thirteen, in 1850, to show that the doctrine had always been non-intervention against slavery by either Congress or the Territory, until it came to be a State. DOUGLAS AND THE WHIG PATHERS.

Mr. B. continued: Do you suppose that Daniel Webster, after the opinion of the Supreme Court that I have read to you, would have considered it becoming him to point out some contrivance or device by which that Territorial Legislature could violate the constitutional rights of the Southern States? Not he! Nor would Clay, nor would any of the great good men who figured in the ear-lier days of your history. [Cheers.] Judges and Governors of these Territorial Governand Governors of these Territorial Governments are appointed by the President and Senate of the United States, and paid out of the public Treasury; so that the very legislation which they invoke to exclude your property from the Territories, is one whose daily expenses are paid out of the Treasury out of the money to which that very property contributes by taxation. [Applause,] The practice of the Government has always been different. Here Mr. B. entered into an argument to show that Congress has power to protect property in Territories, and into an argument to show that Congress has power to protect property in Territories, and in refutation of the position recently taken by the Senator from Illinois, that Congress had never exercised this power. The principles I have tried feebly to vindicate here are the principles upon which the Constitutional Democracy stands to-day, and they are the only principles upon which any human being will pretend to charge them with purposes of disunion. If they are the principles of the Constitution and the Union, then we are Constitutional and Haioniste. then we are Constitutional and Unionists; [cries of "That's so,"] and yet for two or three months you have heard loud and inces-sant clamor that I and those Democrats with whom I am connected, are a disunion organzation, who seek to break up the Confederacy of the States.

I hardly know, so far as it is a personal charge against myself, how to answer it. [A voice, "Tell' em it's a lie."] As repeated by anonymous writers and wandering orators over the country, their whole stock of trade is "disunion, disunion; this man and his party attempts to break up the union of the States." We say, how can principles be sectional or disunionist, which are based upon the Constitution and the large number. upon the Constitution, and the large number of young gentlemen, who are engaged in ringing with tongues as long and heads as empty as the bells which they ring, cry disusion. [Prolonged laughter and cheers.] From sources yet more eminent comes the information that I and the political organization with which I am connected, are laboring for the disroption of the Confederacy. I do not reply now to what Mr. Douglas rays all over New England, in Vireracy. I do not reply now to what Mr. Douglas says all over New England, in Virginia, and wherever he goes, because it is quite natural for a gentieman as much interested as he, to think that any man, who opposes his principles, must be a disunianist. [Cheers and langhter.]

Indeed, by his declaration, we must be all disunionists in Kentucky, for he declares that those who assert that a Territorial Legislature has no power to exclude slave property, and that Congress should interfere for its protection, are disunionists, and that is what the whole Legislature of Kentucky said last year. [Applause.] In our owo State, where I certainly thought my character and anteredents were known, one of the oldest and most eminent of our public men has not said that I was a disunianist, but intimated that I sm connected with on organization whose bone and body is disunion. I refer to Mr. Crittenden, in a speech made at Loniaville. I have known and simired bim. He has known mr. Toward him I have cherished and expect to cherish, relations of respectful and cordini extern. There are reasons which, even if I had grounds for t, would prevent any but perfect courtesy in reply. After speaking of Mr. Lincoln in terms as complimentary as his principles merit, and the Senator from Illinois in terms of sulosy, he speaks of his fellow-citizen. (Here Mr. B. quoted the reference to himself in Crittenden's speech, and continued as fol-lows:

I thank my venerable and distinguished, friend for the hope he yet entertains that I sm not a disunionist. [Laughter and appiause.] Like a humane lawyer, he gives me the benefit of a doubt and for this I thank him. [Renewed cheers.]

MORE ABOUT THE CHARGE OF DISUNION. Mr. B. then paid an eloquent tribute to Gen. Lane; then he returned to the vindica-tion of himself against the charge of di-union. He then challenged any one point union. He then challenged any one point out any disunion in the platform and showed that the same dootrines had be and showed the State of Kentucky; seen adopted by the distribution of the duty of Congress to project slavery against hostile territorial significant. A large part of the speech we taken up by the argument to show that me question of the duty of Government ward slave property, was to be left to the Supreme Court, and that the Court had almothing be seen that the common track of that argument that we have cut it down liberally.

Mr. B. said that the principles which he alr. b. said that the principles which had laid down were advocated by no other party. The Republicans directly denied them. The Bell party declares, and principles at all. Seward, Banks, and Giddings, all went for the Constitution and the en-forcement of the laws, and as the platforn.

Mr. B. then recurred to his vindication from the charge of disunionism, which was the charge that he was an emancipationist in 1849; also, the charge that he was a Know-Nothing.

At half-past two this morning, the telegraph still running on this speech and on the same strain, which promised to be inexhaustable, we concluded to close up our forms, and let it run.
